If you don't have 30 seconds to watch the above video, here's how to do it:
1. Launch Gmail.
2. Click the gear icon in the upper-right corner, then Settings.
3. Click the Labs tab.
4. Find Undo Send and click Enable.
5. Scroll down and click Save Changes.
The next time you send an email, you'll have 10 seconds to undo it. That's all she wrote.

How To Erase Backgrounds In A Photo
Thursday, March 20, 2014 | Bambi Brannan Posted In Tips and Tricks

There seems to be a growing trend among Mac photo app developers to take each of Photoshop's many features and create an app that does the same thing.
A few years ago Photoshop came out with a tool to erase background objects from photos. Then a bunch of single purpose Mac apps that did the same thing came out. Here's another one. This one erases the background from a photo, Photoshop style, but for much less.

What's taking up the most space?

A bloated phone is a slower phone, so you want to make sure your iPhone has a little room to breathe. But before you do anything drastic, you should get a sense of what's actually taking up the most space.

Luckily, checking out your iPhone's usage is a very simple process. Simply tap on Settings > General > Usage. (Note that it might take a while for this list to populate, especially if your phone is really loaded up.)
